

Meet the Middlemen

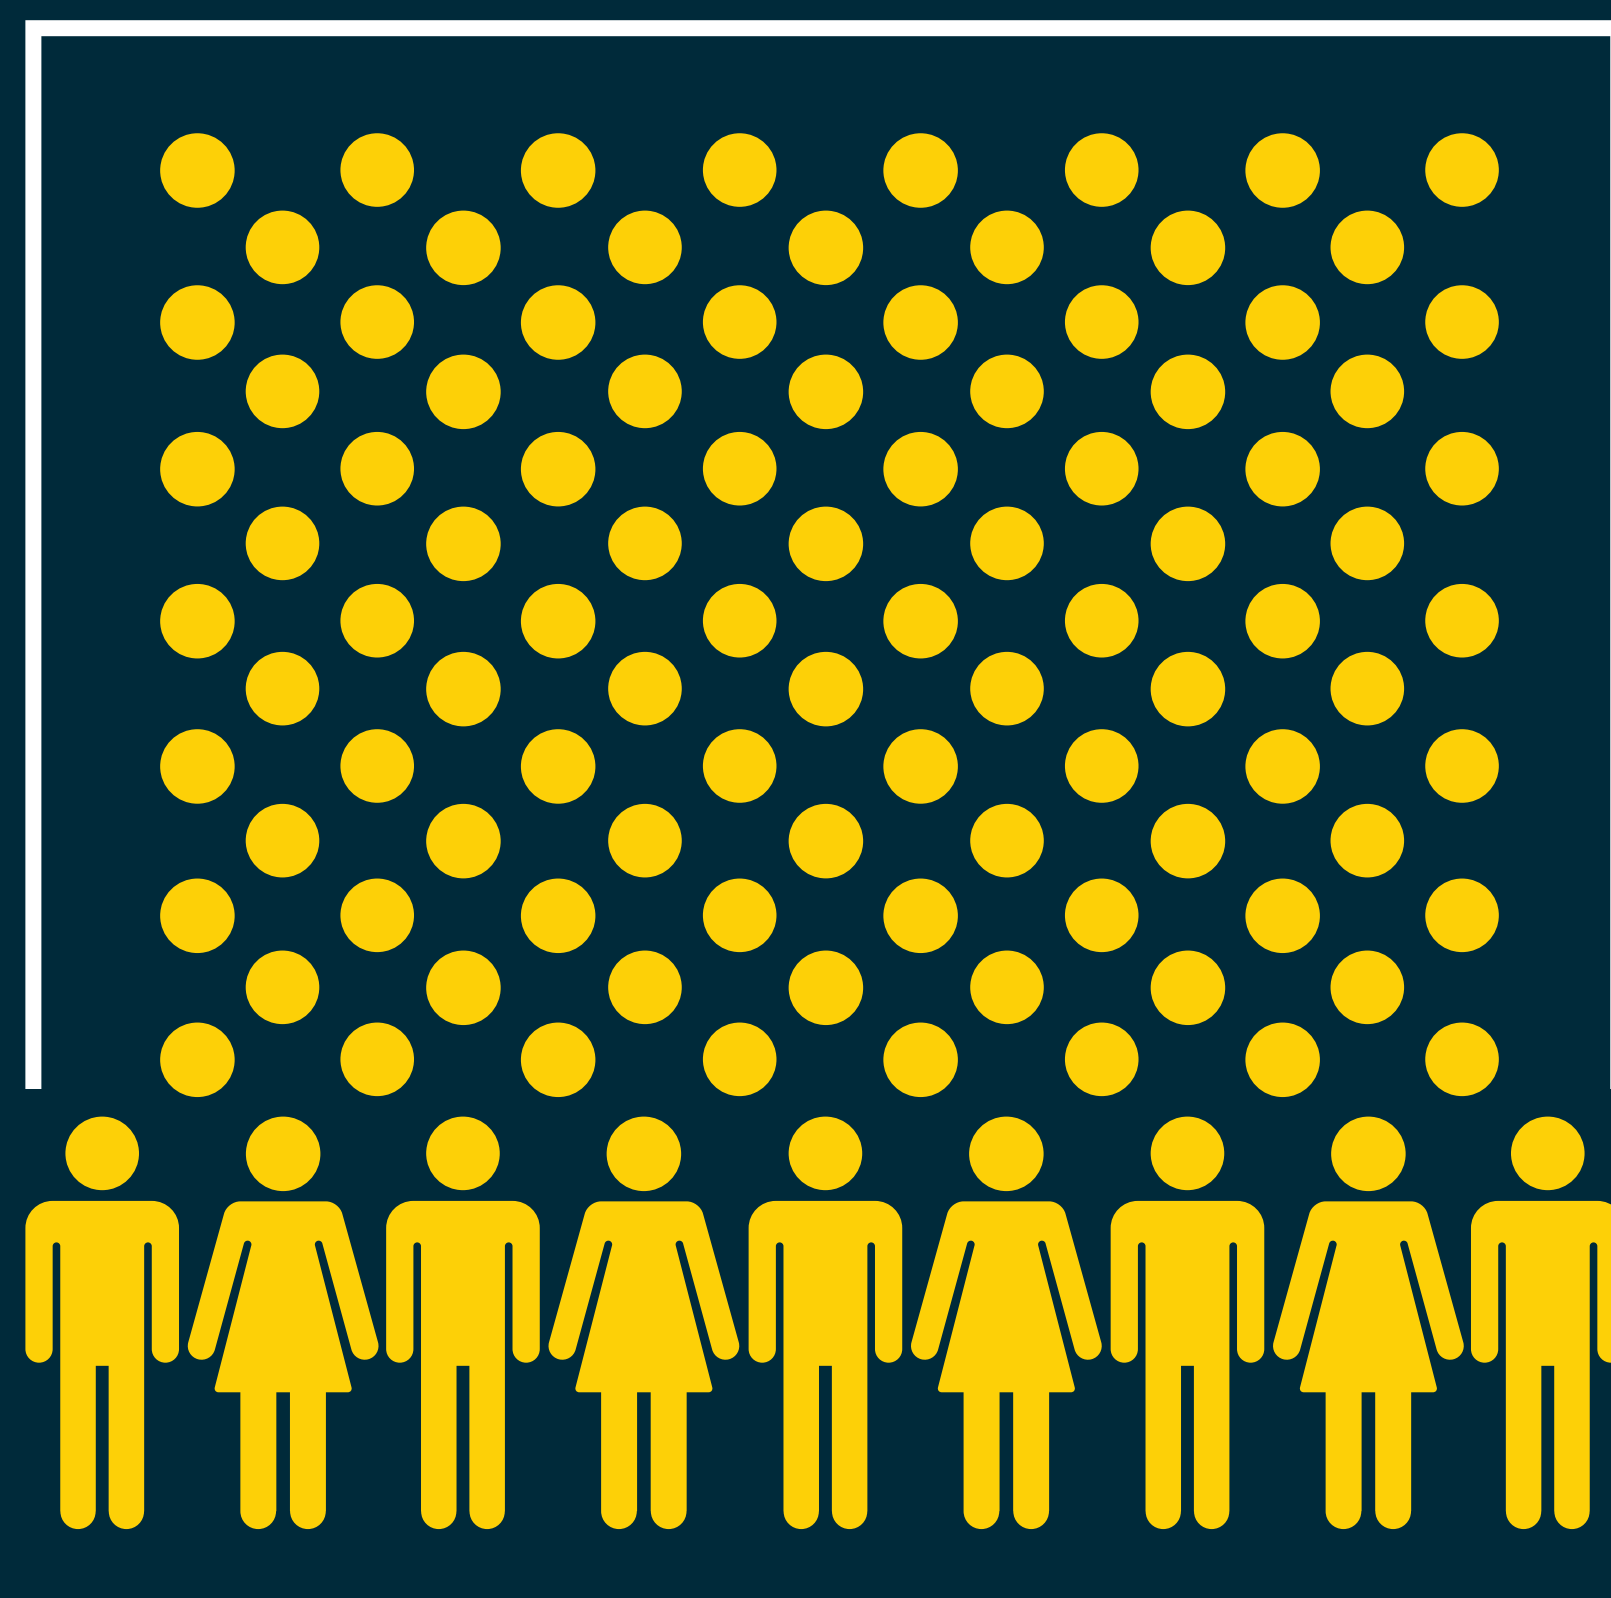

You get your medicine from your community pharmacist. It's researched and developed by a pharmaceutical company. And in between, there's a Middleman called a pharmacy benefit manager, or PBM.

3 Middlemen control
78% of the market

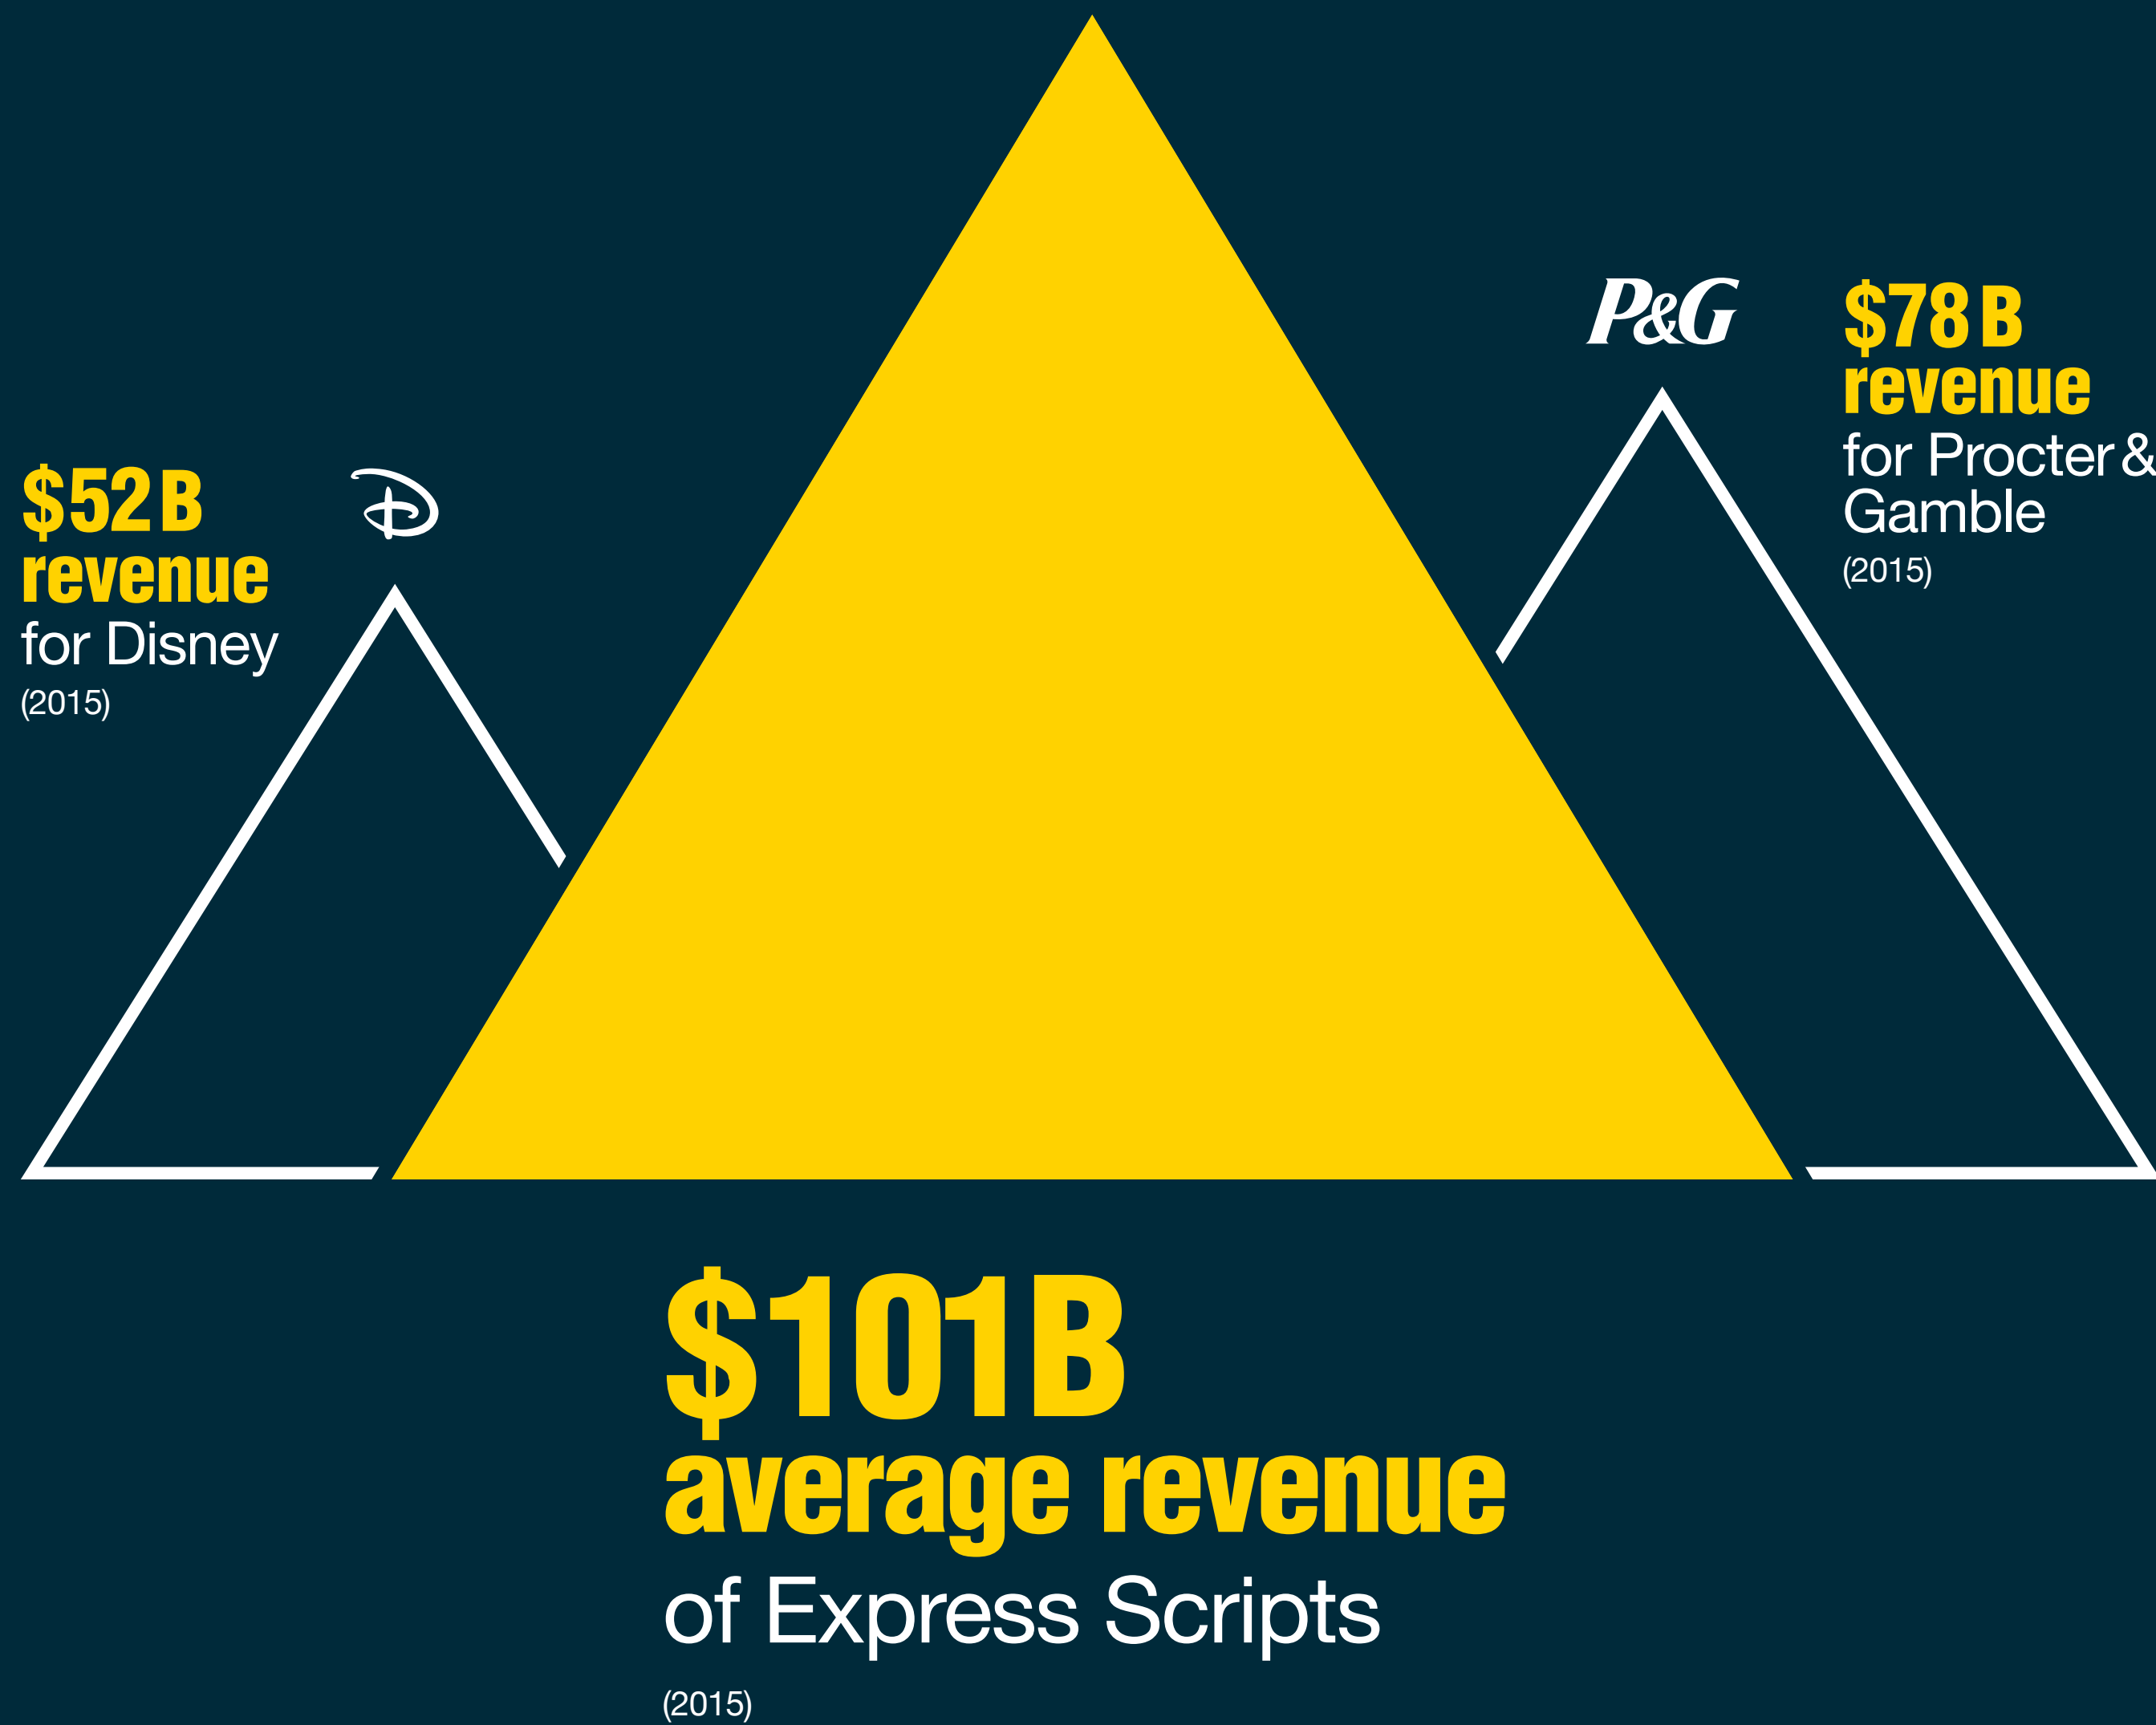

Large PBMs have evolved into behemoth corporations that play an oversized role in the marketplace.

PBMs control pharmacy benefits of more than 253 million
Americans

PBMs produce no tangible product. But they make more money than some of America's top companies that do.

The Bottom Line: These large, wealthy companies—that produce no tangible product—are profiteering on the backs of patients who are shouldering high out-of-pocket drug costs.
